The Colored Allies Pully Recognized in the Distribution of the Spoils-

Resignations, &c.

JULY 1, 1886.

The cancus meeting of the Republican members of the Common Council held last night to nominate officers under the reorganization of the various departments of the municipal government for the ensuing two years lasted between six and seven hours. As far as the public is informed the proceedings were harmonious. The most delicate duty the caucus JULY 1, 1886. most delicate duty the caucus had to discharge in the distribution of the offices was to see that the colored allies were properly recognized in the award to them of an equitable share of the spoils. It is generally conceded today that the division was fair. Though the desire of the pegroes for representation on the police corps was not gratified, they may yet feel satisfied in the fact that the entire street the street of the pegroes for representation of the police corps was not gratified, they may yet feel satisfied in the fact that the entire street down department-from commissioner down to the humblest sweeper-was given to them. J. M. Smith, late a colored member of the Council from the Sixth Ward, was nominated for street com-missioner, and the chire force under his charge will be colored. The drivers of the street carts have heretofore been white men, but these latter are substituted by negroes as a reward for tuted by negroes as a reward for colored votes. Colored men are also given the offices of keepers of the two city parks, clerk of one of the markets, keeper of the powder-magazine, engineer of the water-works, two physicians to the poor of the city, fair representation on the City School Board, and other minor positions. It was doubtless considered rather a dangerous experiment to put any of them ous experiment to put any of them on the police. It was said that they wanted the charge of the almshouse, too, but this was declined. Mr. C. J. Newcomb was nominated for Chief of Police. The contest for this office was an animated one. Mr. F. R. Russell, who has held that position for some years and has made good officer, was re-nominated for City Auditor.

Mr. James Muirhead was again given the place of superintendent of Bland-ford cemetery, Mr. Michael Heelan that of superintendent of the alms-house, Mr. R. T. Stone register of the water-works, Mr. George W. Eanes superintendent of the water-works, William H. Jones city attorney, and Mr. George E. Scott clerk of the old market. interviews with several councilmen in which some supposed interference on my part with Council matters is made the pretext for their action in the caucus and for becoming reformed Reformers. Permit me to say in reply that my whole action in the premises has been confined to friendly and informal conversations with a portion of the Republican members of the Reform

Council, and that I have never, so far as I now remember, passed a word with any member of that Council who is or was a Democrat or supposed to be of Democratic antecedents or proclivi-ties. I did not even see several of my

As to the pretence that I have attempted to interfere in the selection of the persons to be chosen, it is equally untrue, save in one instance where I recommended two friends to the support of the Republicans to whom I talked, and one of those was not chosen. My whole advice was directed to a general line of policy to be pursued by the Republican friends with whom I talked, and, as can be testified by several parties seeking nominations, both Democrats and Republicans, I expressly declined,

My general suggestions to the few Republicans with whom I talked were as follows: 1. That to make a successful coalition of the Reform elements they must be prepared to make conces nition of Republicans as such, or of the colored people. 3. That they ought not to be too radical in turning men out of office where no fit substitute could be found for the incumbent; but where a petent with the incumbent it was their right to place him in the position, regard-voted against their views they raise objections that they are not Reformers, Another thing about which I talked with the few Republicans I met had more reference and pertinency to these people who are now making me their scapegoat.

I warned my political associates to ant on new movements-to wit, men who, pretending to be with the new movement, were really and at heart against it. Some of them, I told them, they might control it if possible, and, if not, break it up.

The first class I looked upon as only negative losses as they would drop out, but the other class was dangerous, bad at heart, and had to be watched and guarded against. I told them that they had better watch for this element among the men who had allowed both sides to support them, for a man who is on both sides of any question is not, as a rule, to be trusted; but I told them also to watch for men among the
